Script:

Once upon a time, King Stefan and his queen were throwing a great feast to honor their new baby. Princess Aurora. Everyone rock your baby and say, "Isn't she the cutest little thing." Royal adults, look at your own little princess and say "Isn't she the cutest little thing." Very good!

King Stefan welcomed his good friend King Hubert to the feast. King Hubert brought his son the young but dashing prince Philip (sigh.) The two kings had already decided that the two children would marry when they grew up, joining the two kingdoms. Prince Philip took one look at the baby and thought, "Bluck!" Everyone make a big yucky face and say "Bluck!"

Among the guests at the feast were the three good fairies. Each of the fairies wanted to bless the princess with a magical gift. Flora stepped-forward and with a wave of her wand gave the princess the gift of beauty. Fauna came next and waving her wand she gave the gift of song. Finally, Merryweather stepped forward but before she could speak, lightning flashed and a flame shot up in the middle of the hall. As the flame grew, the figure of the evil fairy Maleficent appeared, along with her wicked pet raven perched on her shoulder.

Maleficent was furious that she had not been invited to the feast. "I too have a gift for the newborn princess," she said "The princess shall grow in beauty and grace, but before sunset on her sixteenth birthday, she shall prick her finger on a spinning wheel and die." The evil witch Maleficent laughed her cruel laugh, Ha Ha Ha, and her raven gave it's nasty caw, "Caw! Caw!" and with a wave of her staff she vanished.
